Dedication

Few now at Hinds remember what it was like before he came, but hundreds have since felt his influence. In his twenty-one years here he has taught football and good sportsmanship, history and high character, government and morality. Legendary are his dramatizations of great moments of history; few who saw it will forget his signing of the Declaration of Independence. His stubborn insistence is partly responsible for the beauty of our new buildings. Er-Gawd, anybody who is worth a pinch of minkey-snuff will remember that his classes were never dull. And so because we think he is a great teacher and an interesting personality, we dedicate this volume of THE EAGLE to J. R. Harris, affectionately known to many as Jobie.

ADMINISTRATION

Grades, Books, and Papers, the teacher's trademark . . . The patience of Job . . . Diabolical questions . . . Wisdom learned from children . . . Their many duties . . . and privileges . . . Building their own lives in helping others.

*For truth, we are ever seeking;
To impart knowledge, we are never ceasing.*

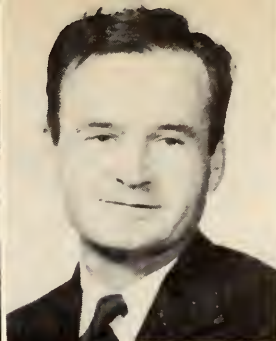

FAITH . . .

The long upward path of mankind is strewn with the wrecks of failures, but faith has given him the strength to struggle on. It is our purpose to give our youth the tools needed to carve out a life so that he may believe in and have confidence in himself and in our way of life. We want him to have faith in our founders' belief that courage, hard work, and love of liberty made our nation great and will keep it that way.
